HOOPSKIRTS AND HEALTHY WOMEN

BY ELIZABETH DUDLEY. For several months past ladies have been promlead a reform in dress—a return to untrimmed skirts, short enough to swing clear of the ground in walking, and plain enough to be light and easy to carry. Our ladies walk the streets attired in to carry. Our ladies walk the streets attired in the same heavily trimmed and hooped and puffed and though a few plain-skirted redingotes, loose-fitting and belted round at the waist, are seen,

The physiologist longs for a change, being aware how injurious the present mode of dress is to our delicate women; and any sensible man or woman who examines the variety of skirts now worn by a fashionable lady is awared at their number and weight. For hoopskirts have long been discarded by ultra-fashionables, and yet fashion requires that the form shall not appear too thin. So, first, a short, thick fiannel underskirt is worn over the hips, with a broad hem and two tucks to make it set out; then a muslin underskirt, with several tucks, often stiffly starched; then a mohair under-skirt, flounced all round and with six or seven flounces on the back breadths, to make the dress set out at the back. A bustle or panier is next put on, for our fashionable young lady cannot make her dress sufficiently boufant at the back unless she wears a tournure. Over this is placed a muslin skirt, flounced, puffed, tucked and em-broidered; and on full-dress occasions another broidered; and on full-dress occasions another muslin skirt, similarly made, but much heavier, being long and trained, and consequently supply-ing more room for flounces. And then comes the dress-skirt, covered up the front breadth with side-platting and bands, or quillings and pumnings or pipings—and round the other breadths with flounces and trimmings of every imaginable de-sertation.

what a load for one delicate woman to carry. And what an unnecessary load! Suppose that, instead of all these heavy underskirts, she were o dress her body and limbs evenly and warmly to dress her body and limbs evenly and warmly in fiannel, and wear one fiannel underskirt, sufficiently long, with a small-sized, well-made hoopskirt next it; over that a plain skirt of gray fiannel or white muslin; then the dress-skirt, of walking length, trimmed or not, according to the fancy of the wearer and her bodily strength—how much more comfortable she would immediately feel! How rapidly her health would improve.

Then she would be able to walk and when her Then she would be able to walk, and when her

Then she would be able to walk, and when her blood had become oxygenized by this hygienic exercise, her complexion would improve daily, her eyes and hair brighten, her spirits grow more vivacious, her temper more equable and under control—she would in every way constantly develop into a fascinating woman.

I fear the reader hardly believes that the wearing of hoop-skirts, in place of other and heavier skirts, will effect all this, but any doubter can and sallow skinned that all her friends thought; her to be in ill-health; her lips were bluish white; there was no color in her cheeks; her face was getting wrinkled; her bair rapidly turning graygetting wrinkled; her hair rapidly turning gray—in every respect she looked and felt prematurely old. On learning her habits of life, I advised her to walk. But at that time she felt wearied out on walking half a mile. I recommended a change of dress, and she followed my advice.

Clothing herself in a warm suit of financl, and discarding her heavily-trimmed clothing for a light, well-made hoop-skirt with an almost plain dress-skirt above it, she began to walk half a mile after breakfast and the same distance before supper every day. At the end of a week she had increased the distance to a mile each time (twenty creased the distance to a mile each time (twenty city blocks made a mile,) and in a few weeks to two miles. From that time her health and appearance rapidly improved, her youthful energy re-turned, she took a new lease of life. Now she is able to walk ten miles or more every day, and does generally walk six miles, excepting in very bad weather. Her skin is soft, line, and free from wrinkles, her complexion remarkably clear and fair, with rosy lips, and, on exercising out of doors, a delicate bloom in her cheeks. Her hair is a bright, pretty brown, without a gray hair to be seen. Indeed, her friends all wonder at her youthful appearance and youthful enjoyment of life. She declares that hoor-skirts have effected the change by enabling her to walk, and that by their aid she means to remain young till the age of ninety!

A FATHER AND TWO SONS MARRY A MOTHER AND TWO DAUGHTERS. For pure, unalloyed, unbroken happiness and contentment, says the Champion, Atchison was yesterday the temporary abiding place of a family that from surrounding circumstances should bear off the paim. They are on their wedding tour, and consisted of a mother and two daughters who had married a father and two says. From II. who had married a father and two sons From II. linois they came, and were on their way to Water-ville, which is to be their future home. Mrs. Davis and her two daughters were well-to-handsome, bewitching daughters as ever plighted troth. In their home, in Decatur county, Illinois, they were near neighbors to Mr. G. Musser, who was favored by fortune with two stalwart, hearty, sult that follows? That our subject may be more fully understood we will here state that Mrs. Davis was a widow; not the species that Samuel Weller so dreaded, but a pleasant, accomplished lady; and Mr. Musser was a widower, well established in this world's goods, and had a reputation for upright. tur county.

A few months ago Mr. Musser, tired of his lone-A tew months ago Mr. Musser, tired of his ione-some widower's life, paid court and homage to the widow. Of course the proceeding could not be carried on without the knowledge of the young folks, and this knowledge led to a general famil-iarity and intimacy that was an inevitable fore-runner of a more permanent acquaintance. A confession from the old gentleman to his sons that he had determined to bring a new wife to their home, brought the counter confession from the home, brought the counter confession from the ambitious young gentlemen that they had determined on the same course, and conveyed to him the startling intelligence that the daughters of the widow had succambed to their persuasions, and that the time-honored name of Davis was about to be changed to that of Musser.

We are uninformed as to the direct channel the old gentleman's thoughts took, but in our imagi-nation we hear two or three, or perhaps four, very emphatic adjectives drop unbidden to the ground. A few days ago, nevertheless, there was a triple wedding in Decatur county, Illinois, and the three happy couples arrived in our city day be-fore yesterday, remaining two days, and yester-day left on the Central Branch train for Waterville, where their future home will be. The ladies were out shopping yesterday, and will be remembered by close observers as two pretty young women, dressed in black, with navy blue water-proof cloaks and capes, chaperoned by a pleasant-looking middle-aged lady.
